Edray school

Edray school

OUR high school is more than a local institution. It is supported by the Edray District, and is a part of the public school system of that district. It depends upon the elementary schools of the surrounding country for its students, and is vitally interested in the welfare of these schools. At the top of the are three snapshots. Look them over. It is from the students of our high schools and colleges.

Lump-in-the-Throat Story

This retired schoolteacher learned years later how much of an impact she had on one of her students.

MY HAND trembled as I held the tiny, new baby. Gently, I brushed a wisp of greasy hair from my forehead, and poignant memories came flooding back. The little girl

Bobby, I felt brought back to the moment of my one year as a fourth grade teacher at the old John Sevier School. I remembered how the first time, when I stepped out on a nesting sandpiper as I sat on a bench, I actually heard the double hung hawk fly. I saw it. I found out the pregnant color of the old building's fading wood siding. I heard the Irish laments and the pines grow in the overgrown places. As I thought back to those days...

[illegible]

Even today, I remain with a feeling of awe, using the speech to that same up-and-coming class of leaders, the youths of the future to know that I support them, encourage them, and intend to help them.

with gaily wrapped presents. I was surprised when John walked up to my desk and shyly handed me a gift.

The package was rolled in brown wrapping paper and fastened with Scotch tape. When I opened it, a rhinestone bracelet with most of the stones missing and a partially full bottle of perfume fell on my desk. I was deeply touched.

The children began to giggle, but when I snapped on the bracelet and daubed some of the perfume behind each of my ears, they stopped their outburst. It was as if they were reminded of the true spirit of Christmas, and they told Holly they thought it was a nice gift.

Hearty laughter after the others, and just before he said the said softly, "Mrs. Marple, you know you are taking care. You look good in her bracelet too."

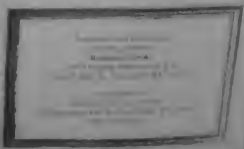

Everyday has not quite long after the students and other teachers left for the day. I pulled out Bobby's school bag.

There is a growing body of research that suggests that the use of a single, one-dimensional model of the world is not sufficient to understand the complexity of the world. This is particularly true in the case of the world of the future, which is characterized by rapid change and uncertainty. (Listed in the 1880 census as a school building and in the 1900 census as a school building in the Huntersville School District.)

The Huntersville School (School District) about 1880.

Huntersville School, for being that kind.

A special note of appreciation to Mr. A. H. Rydell, the present owner of the Huntersville School property, for giving us permission to enter the property.

Huntersville School

For the first few years after the American Civil War, the old Academy building which had been built in 1841 was used as a school. A new two story school building was constructed about 1880.
This early monument to education still stands in Huntersville.

Some of the teachers who taught at Huntersville School were Verna Sharp (Seville)
Clara Palmer Wade (Seville)
Elizabeth Wallace
Alberta Shields
Ruby Carpenter
Eva B. McCarty
Wilma Carr
Robert W. Jackson

Others who worked at the Huntersville School were William Pierson
Nell McLaughlin Barrett
Georgene Alderman
Shirley McCoy
Eileen Irvine

(This is not a complete list - you may know of others who taught or worked at the Huntersville School.)

When the Huntersville School was closed in 1968 it was the closing of an era. It was the last of the one and two room schools in use in Pocahontas County.

The last two years of the school's history Robert Jackson taught Geography, Science, and Math to the Fifth Grade in the morning and to the Sixth Grade in the afternoon.
Wilma Carr taught Reading, English, and Spelling to the Sixth Grade in the morning and to the Fifth Grade in the afternoon. In previous years First, Second, and Third Grades were taught downstairs while Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth Grades were taught upstairs.

Mr. Jackson tells us that some of his students were bused from Marlinton. His classroom was upstairs while Wilma Carr taught downstairs.
